The Origins of Mother Carey Chickens

The earliest known Mother Carey Chicken was created by Stacy Deanne in 1994. Inspired by the seafaring tales of her childhood, Deanne envisioned a mythical bird that would embody the spirit of the ocean. The name "Mother Carey Chicken" is derived from the old sailors' superstition that these birds were the souls of drowned sailors, returning to protect their loved ones from storms.

Mother Carey Chickens quickly became popular, and Deanne's studio in Maine has been producing these beloved creatures ever since. Over the years, the Mother Carey Chicken family has grown to include a wide variety of characters, from the classic seafaring birds to whimsical creatures of land and sky.

The Creative Process

Creating a Mother Carey Chicken is a labor of love that can take several days to complete. Each bird is hand-sculpted from clay, using a combination of traditional and modern techniques. Deanne uses a variety of tools to create the intricate details of each bird, including sculpting knives, brushes, and stamps.

Once the bird is sculpted, it is fired in a kiln to harden the clay. After cooling, the bird is painted with acrylic paints and sealed with a protective varnish. The entire process is incredibly time-consuming, but it is also incredibly rewarding for Deanne.
